Located in the Cascade Range, Mt. Bachelor is home to the largest ski area in the US Pacific Northwest. If any volcano in the range had to be given over completely to lift-served skiing, Bachelor is perhaps the finest choice. It has a very symmetrical form, consisting of a steep-sided shield surmounted by a composite cone, results in slopes of near perfect pitch for skiing, which drop from the summit over the full 360-degree circle. Tree cover on the upper portions is quite sparse, but the few trees are distributed along radial erosion furrows, thus creating ready-made ski runs and also protecting the snowpack from the winds. Bachelor receives nearly 400 inches of snowfall annually, and its snow retention is among the best of any ski area in North America, resulting in a ski season which stretches reliably from November to June, and often even into July.

Famous for its dry snow, during the 08/09 ski season Mt Bachelor saw at least an inch of snow on 53% of its operating days, providing 82 days of fresh tracks out of a total of 156. For the entire season, 531 inches of snow fell on the mountain.

Due to its challenging terrain parks and excellent snow conditions, Mt. Bachelor is the official home training resort of many professional and Olympic athletes, and hosts several professional USSA competitions each year.

The resort boasts a skiable vertical drop of 3,365 feet with a lift running to 9000 feet just 65 feet below the volcano's summit, which is accessible via a short hike. Total lift accessible area is 3683 acres with approximately 1600 acres groomed daily. The longest run is just over 1.5 miles. There are 11 chairlifts, seven of which are express quads.

Seven restaurants, three bars, and three coffeehouses on the premises are distributed in four day lodges.
